

A diagram of the Active teaching/learning relationships that need to be present for children to become active learners in cross-cultural situations. Children can only be active learners in a cross-cultural situation if the teacher teaches the children how to be active and if the learning context supports the learning.

